Gymnastics: fast-growing sport

Olympic feats boost popularity

By Don Green

Every four years the intricate feats of young women gymnasts in the Olympic Games capture the imagination of girls throughout the United States.

Televised performances of Cathy Rigby, Olga Korbut and Nadia Comaneci have sent more than a few girls out to look for their first leotards and a gymnastics class to join.

Bill Rawlings, gymnastics instructor for the Upland Recreation Department, credited the televised Olympics and standout performances by the young athletes with helping to make gymnastics one of the fastest growing sports for girls.

Rawlings teaches four classes six days a week at the Upland Community Center, 352 E. C St., a converted supermarket.

Some 200 girls, 5-18 years, and about 25 boys, up to 12 years, learn gymnastic skills on equipment provided by the city of Upland.

A waiting list of 75-100 youths is evidence of the program's popularity.

Rawlings said he hopes to start a five-week class this summer to at least temporarily eliminate the waiting list and introduce youths to gymnastics before they lose interest.

He added he is looking into the possibility of beginning a class for the handicapped and developmentally disabled using gymnastics in its exercise program.

Rawlings attends Western State University College of Law in Orange County during the morning and supervises the young gymnasts 3:30-7:30 p.m.

After taking time off in June and July to study for the state bar examination, he said he plans to combine careers by practicing law in the mornings and continuing his gymnastics instruction in the afternoons.

He competed in gymnastics for Huntington Park High School near Los Angeles and took up the sport again at California Polytechnic University, Pomona, after laying off five years.

Rawlings, who previously worked for the Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department, said he takes a recreation approach to teaching gymnastics.

Unlike some private clubs that weed out untalented young gymnasts and put pressure on competitors to excel, Rawlings stressed that enjoyment plays an important role in the Upland program.

"If the kids enjoy what they're doing, they're going to continue to do it and work hard," he explained.

Rawlings said that because the department's classes only allow a maximum of two hours training four times a week for the advanced pupils, Olympic hopefuls are unlikely to come out of the program.

However, he added that The Gainers, the team for advanced girl gymnasts, has held its own against competition from private clubs in Zone 6 of the Southern California Women Gymnasts Association.

The Gainers compete in dual meets once a week and zone meets three times a week. Those that qualify in the zone meets advance to district meets and if they perform well there, they advance to organization's state championships.

Rawlings noted 15-year-old Janis Jorgensen, a sophomore at Upland High School, competed last month in a Southern California championship meet.

Despite the high interest by many Upland girls, Upland High School does not offer gymnastics as a competitive sport.

Rawlings said the Recreation Department program is capable of preparing "top-notch college gymnasts." He added that he is interested in reaching his students beyond gymnastics, making them more well-rounded individuals.

The Upland program serves those who might not be able to afford the $40-$50 a month fees of private clubs, he said. Fees for the Recreation Department classes range $12-$18.

Rawlings said the program at the Community Center is unique for a recreation department, although most in the area do offer gymnastics.

Heating, air conditioning, a $5,000 floor mat and $2,000 set of uneven parallel bars help make the C Street facility the best in the area, he asserted.

Rawlings said more boys are not attracted to gymnastics because other sports catch their attention at an early age. He added, however, their interest could be increased if Americans show well in the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

During a recent practice, young girls took their turns at vaulting, floor exercise, uneven parallel bars and balance beam, while Rawlings was assisted by Chris Carter, a student at Montclair High School, and Chuck Bruesh.

Rawlings said Bruesh, an Upland resident, volunteers 75 hours a month to the program and will probably take over while he studies for the bar examination.

Advanced gymnasts Jeannie Morrill, Terri Slyder and Celia Westlorn also assist the younger students.

The undercurrent of practice noise is occasionally broken when one of the girls completes a difficult move and the others applaud.

Rawlings, who has been with the Recreation Department program 18 months, said some tricks the girls perform "scare" him as a coach because of the risk involved.

Although serious injuries are infrequent, he explained the "hardest thing" for him to do as a coach is walk away from a student ready to try a difficult move on her own.

"I'll spot anything if the girl wants to go for it," he said, adding that the gymnast leads up to difficult trick gradually adding one movement to another until she is ready.

City budget depends on outcome of Jarvis vote

By Don Green

City administrators meeting two days later this month during Upland's annual budget review will discuss how to cope with a revenue loss estimated at $1.35 million if the Jarvis - Gann property tax limitation initiative passes in June.

Using such terms as "ball-park figures" and "guesstimates," Finance Director Anthony Andrade last week stressed that projected city revenue under the Jarvis - Gann initiative, Proposition 13, or Proposition 8 (part of the legislature property tax relief alternative) would probably change before June 6 balloting.

Andrade said the city is preparing for a "full gamut" of possibilities affecting the city's budget for fiscal 1978-79.

In guarded terms, he estimated property tax revenue for Upland under the Jarvis-Gann initiative at $1.35 million, compared to $2.9 million for property tax and replacement funds under Proposition 8 and SB 1, the Behr property tax relief package. Sen. Peter Behr (R - San Rafael) is the author of SB 1.

In the $9.96 million budget for the current fiscal year, $2.78 million, or 28 percent of city revenue, comes from property taxes.

Upland's tax rate of $1.8064 per $100 assessed valuation accounts for about 15 percent of residents' property tax bills, Andrade said.

Both Propositions 13 and 8 are proposed state constitutional amendments. Proposition 8 would allow the legislature to set lower property tax rates for owner-occupied residences without raising the rates for commercial and industrial uses.

SB 1, already passed by the legislature, would reduce homeowners' property tax bills 30 percent, if Proposition 8 is approved and Proposition 13 defeated.

Part of the state's surplus would be used to offset loss in revenue to local governments.

Major provisions of Proposition 13 would:

- Limit property tax to 1 percent of the full cash value of the property as of the 1975-76 assessments.

- Limit property tax increases due to inflation to 2 percent a year based on the consumer price index or comparable gauge.

- Permit establishment of a new "full cash value" when there is new construction or a change in ownership.

Require counties to collect the 1 percent property tax and "apportion it according to law to the districts within the counties."

- Permit local agencies to impose special taxes — other than those prohibited on property — by a two-thirds vote of the "qualified electors" of such agencies.

- Require two-thirds vote of the Senate and Assembly for any changes in state taxes resulting in increased revenues.

Andrade noted no formula exists for the county allocation of the maximum 1 percent property tax. Because the state would have to pass laws governing how the remaining property tax revenue would be distributed, he said, revenue forecasting for the Jarvis - Gann initiative is uncertain.

He also said cities might not qualify as "districts" in the initiative's language. Although unlikely, Andrade said such an interpretation would virtually wipe out city property tax funding.

Andrade said city administrators will "try for a balancing method for each tentative possibility" during the budget retreat April 24 and 25 at The Arbor Restaurant in Upland.

Department heads are preparing their priorities for cutbacks in case Proposition 13 passes, he added.

He said Upland will not take an "across-the-board" approach to cuts but would attempt to safeguard "essential services."

Several council members have pointed to need to maintain police and fire protection.

Andrade said possible cutbacks would be developed as a "team effort" during the retreat.

Since wages and salaries make up about 50 percent of the total budget, he added, most of the cuts would have to come from layoffs.

Andrade noted "meet and confer" negotiating sessions with city employee organizations for new contracts are proceeding but with a lot of "unknowns."

He pointed out the Jarvis - Gann initiative could reduce the local taxing effort on which federal revenue - sharing dollars would be based for fiscal 1979-80.

Upland currently receives $234,000 under the revenue-sharing program.

While describing the impact of Behr property tax relief package as "relatively modest by comparison" with Proposition 13, Andrade said revenue estimates are still uncertain.

He noted state replacement funds for the property tax relief for homeowners are geared to the gross national product price deflator, a measure of inflation.

Projections of city revenue will change next week when new figures from this index are available, he said.

Andrade also foresaw potential problems in tying increases in government spending to GNP deflator. Some city costs — personnel to run the new fire station and insurance, for example — have spiraled upward faster than indexes of inflation, he commented.

Council budget hearings usually held in late May will be delayed until after the June 6 election and state guidelines on the allocation of property taxes, if Proposition 13 passes, Andrade said.

He added that uncertainty over city revenue for 1978-79 has meant additional staff hours for planning and "disruption of the orderly budget process."

Hart promoted to service captain

Gary Hart, a 13-year veteran with the Upland Police Department, was recently promoted to captain in charge of the service division.

He began his career with the department as a patrol officer and was serving as lieutenant before his promotion. He is a graduate of Chaffey College with an associate of science degree in police science and of California State University, Long Beach, with a bachelor's degree in criminology.

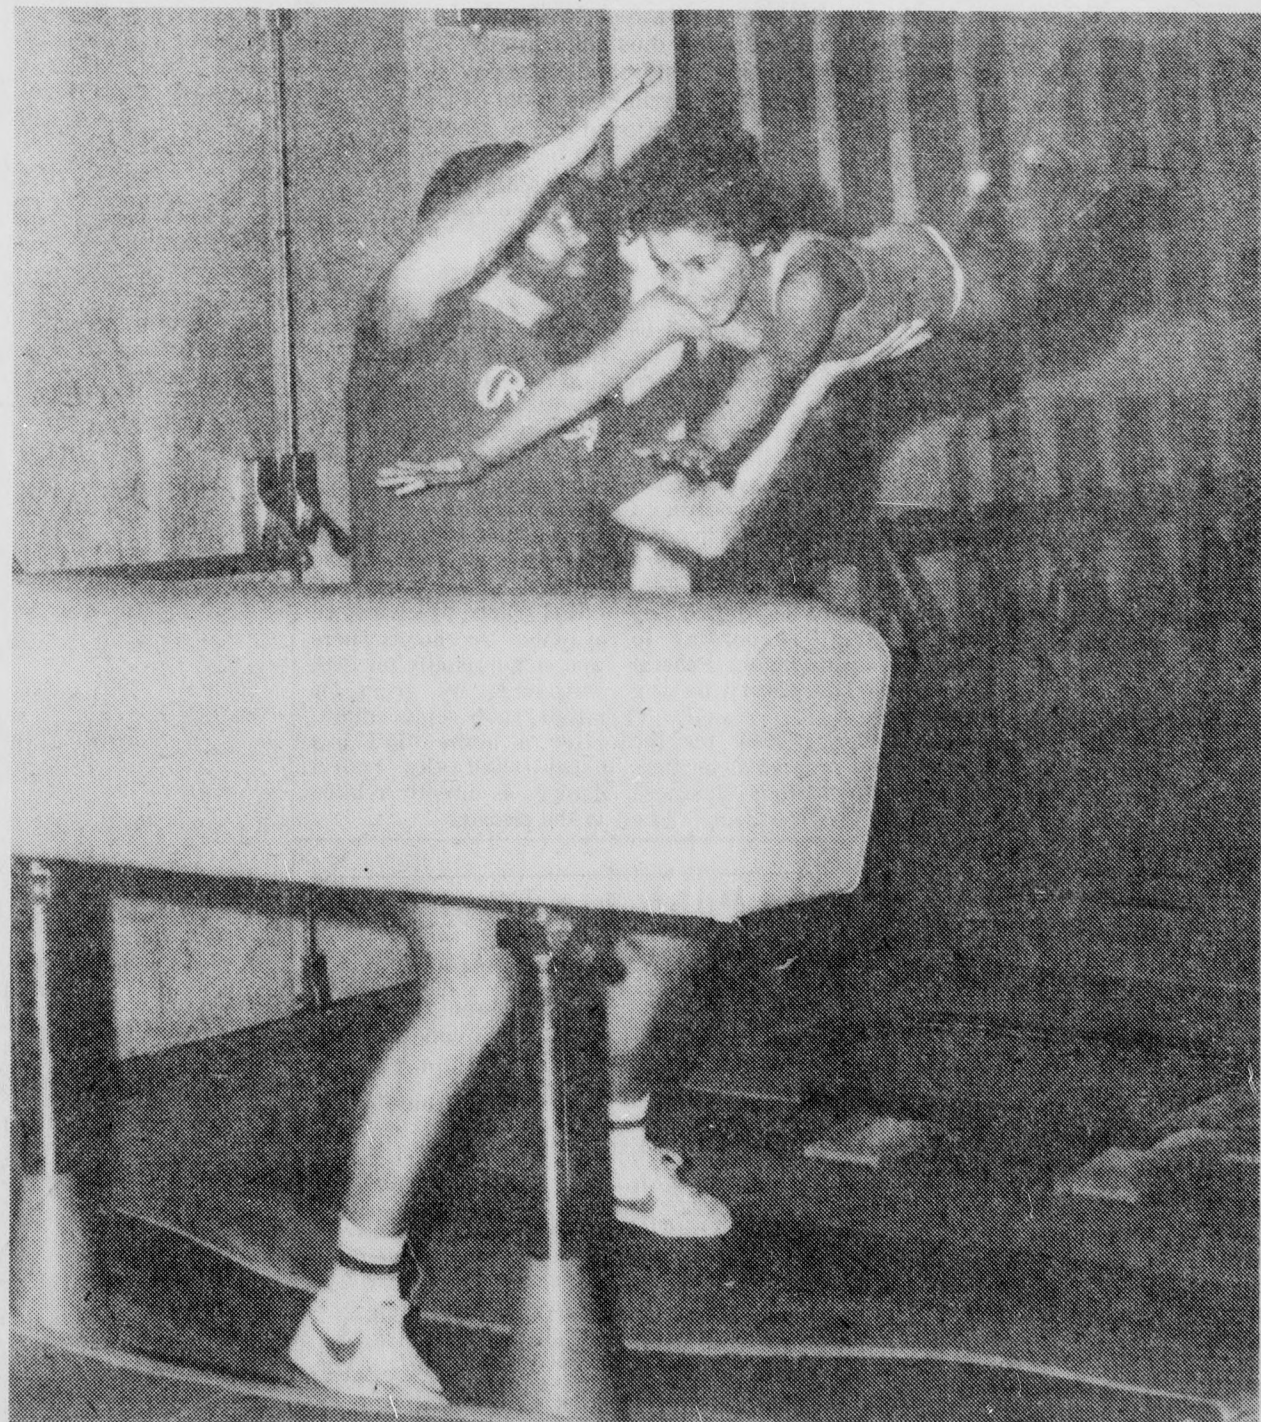

In addition to his duties with the Police Department, Hart has been a part-time instructor in police science the past four years at Chaffey College.

He and his wife, Linda, live in Upland. They have two children.

As commander of the service division, Hart said one of his tasks will be to expand the department's Neighborhood Watch, through which neighbors assist in burglary prevention.

He said that in the 24 areas — usually a block each — Neighborhood Watch has been started only two burglaries have been committed and a suspect was apprehended through neighbors' help in one of them.

Hart can be reached at the department, 982-1331, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays to arrange evening presentations to neighbors interested in setting up a Neighborhood Watch.

Disaster assistance set

Disaster assistance "circuit teams" will be serving San Bernardino County residents, who suffered damage to their homes during the Feb. 5-March 13 storms, every Monday and Tuesday in Rialto and Wednesdays and Thursdays in Corona. The Monday and Tuesday operation will be conducted at Fire Station No. 2, 1925 N. Riverside, in Rialto and the Wednesday and Thursday team will operate out of the County Administration Building, 505 S. Buena Vista Ave., Corona. Both operations will be open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Federal disaster officials caution residents to make a true evaluation of the condition of their homes before the Feb. 5-March 13 storms, which were declared a major disaster by President Carter. Applications received so far indicate that leaking roofs are the most common problems to homeowners and businesses. "If the roof leaked before the severe storms which started Feb. 5, it is not a disaster-related problem," according to spokesmen for the Federal Disaster Coordinating Office. To be eligible for the federal programs, verifiers for the Small Business Administration, the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Individual and Family Grant Program all must be satisfied that damage is a direct result of winds and rain during the declared disaster period. Once that is established, the owner may be eligible for funds to repair the roof. IFG grants, which may be available to homeowners who do not qualify for SBA assistance, are given for repair, not replacement, after a home visit has established the roof's damage is directly related to the disaster.

Young criminals speak on futility of crime

One of the most popular speaking groups in Southern California is a group of young men from the California Youth Authority's Youth Training School in Chino who literally put themselves on display as examples of the futility of crime.

The group, called Young Adults Against Crime, has been traveling on a growing circuit of public schools, juvenile halls, youth organizations, service clubs, TV talk shows and professional groups to give its first-hand message.

YAAC members now give an average of three to four talks per week in communities that are sometimes 100 miles or more from YTS and they almost always leave their audiences thoroughly shaken.

"They come out and put it right on the line," said Sam Kason, assistant superintendent at YTS. "If the speaker is in for murder, for example, he'll tell the audience all about it. The impact is built in."

Brian Moss, 20, who has been with the YAAC group for 10 months, feels he has a better understanding now of his criminal background.

"Talking to people has made all the difference," he said. "I can look at the whole picture now, and I think I have it all together."

Moss is a member of the "first string" YAAC speaking group with three other wards, Bennie Larabee, 19, Elbert Robinson, 19, and Richard Jackson, 20. They are the senior members of the group although there are 13 others in the organization. The 13 are learning speaking techniques in preparation to replace the four senior members as they are paroled.

Membership in YAAC is carefully monitored by the members and by Al Gavaldon, a youth counselor who is their adviser. Applicants are screened twice to eliminate those who are felt to be insincere. It takes a unanimous vote to admit a member.

"What we're looking for," said Jackson, "are guys who have come to terms with what they have done and want to tell others about it in simple, direct language."

YAAC members never preach — they feel their message about the destructiveness and futility of crime comes through from their straightforward accounts of what they have been through. They are also interested, they said, in emphasizing the need for community help and support for incarcerated offenders.

"We try to make it clear," said Larabee, "that we are people and we need the kind of help that all people need. We need friends. We're going to need jobs. Things like that."

Groups interested in arranging for a presentation by the YAAC speakers can do so by writing to Young Adults Against Crime, P.O. Box 800, Ontario, 91761.

"We're anxious to talk to as many people as possible," said Moss. "That way we think we can stop a lot of people from coming to YTS like we did."

Chino Basin considers reactivation of ponds

A draft environmental impact report on the reactivation of the Cucamonga Ponds was recently distributed by the Chino Basin Municipal Water District.

The report on plans for discharging 500,000 gallons to 1 1/2 million gallons of household sewage daily into the now-empty ponds broke no new ground in the debate concerning reopening the reservoirs.

Prepared by the project applicant, the environmental study generally views the reactivation of the southeast Ontario ponds as an alternative to dumping additional domestic sewage in the Los Angeles-bound non-reclaimable industrial waste line.

In this regard, using the ponds would be beneficial, according to the report.

After being treated naturally by the sun and air, the sewage would percolate into the underground water basin, first seeping directly below the reservoirs and then following the generally southerly flow of the underground basin.

According to the report, the underground basin directly under the ponds would receive a high concentration of pollution, but the water quality of the huge Cucamonga Ponds would not suffer.

In fact, the southern corner of the basin now has a high rate of impurity — generally from dairy farm waste — and the addition of water from the ponds would result in improved water quality in the basin below Prado Dam, according to the report.

Cost savings were also cited by the report. When the price tag for importing water for recharging the underground basin is computed, "the proposed project would cost $94 per million gallons less than disposal through the Los Angeles County Sanitation District's (non-reclaimable) system," the report said.

The Chino Basin's report — which will be subject to review by the state water board authorities who would have to approve the Cucamonga Pond project — dealt only briefly with alternatives. Enlarging lot sizes for new homes and installing septic tanks with new developments were two alternatives briefly mentioned in the report.

The construction of temporary package treatment facilities next to the Chino Basin's Ontario treatment plant, an possibility recently discussed, was not studied in the report.

Another alternative is a two-year period of no residential growth until an expansion to the treatment plant is completed. This possibility was not emphasized in the report.

Reactivation of the Cucamonga Ponds for a proposed two-year period would allow construction of 1,700 new homes, according to the report.

Since the overused Ontario treatment plant is under state pressure for the quality of its discharged water, few new homes can be hooked into the treatment facility. Thus, reactivation of the ponds would allow some construction to continue while more permanent solutions to the current growth dilemma are found.

The Cucamonga Ponds were shut down in 1974 after 10 years of operation. Problems with flies generally were the cause of the shutdown.

The Cucamonga ponds are located between Mission Boulevard and Philadelphia Street, west of Haven Avenue.

The West End YMCA is sponsoring a "Hang-Ten" program for junior high school students, meeting from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturdays at the Thunderbird bowling alley in Ontario for league bowling.

As members of the program, students will participate in the bowling league and have the opportunity to go on trips to Magic Mountain and Disneyland.

Chalfant re-elected president of board

Veteran school Trustee G. A. Chalfant was re-elected Monday to a fifth term as president of the Chaffey Joint Union High School District Board of Trustees.

Chalfant, who was elected to the board in 1969, has served as president of the governing body since 1974.

Trustee Charles Uhalley, the newest member of the board, was chosen to replace Jack Carmine as vice president. Carmine had served in the position for the past two years.

Trustee Ray Sarrio was re-elected board clerk and Lorraine Branson, who has served the board for the past 18 years, was reappointed secretary to the board.

The elections took place during the annual reorganization meeting Monday.

In other action, the board scheduled a public hearing on its wage and benefit proposal to the California School Employees Association (CSEA) on April 17 at 7 p.m. in the board room.

The board's basic proposal, which included no salary increase, was presented Monday. Copies of the offer can be reviewed in the superintendent's office.

CSEA had requested a 10.75 percent salary hike for the 1978-79 school year.

Award

Nancy Langdon Jones was the recipient of the Honorary Service Award for Valencia School in Upland. Mrs. Jones received her award for her service and time spent with the youth of the community. Among the youth-oriented activities Mrs. Jones is involved in are serving as a room mother at the school, volunteering time as a classroom helper, being the "Picture Lady," where she taught fine arts to the students, and serving as a scout leader for a troop of 42 girls from five area schools.

Honors

Verne K. Perryman has been selected by the Ontario-Montclair School District PTA to receive its annual Honorary Service Award.

In his service to the community, the recipient has been involved in youth programs, particularly those involving athletics.

He has served on the Ontario Parks and Recreation Commission, the City Planning Commission and the West Valley Planning Agency. Perryman was instrumental in introducing Pop Warner football to the West Coast and also has been active in Little League and in the Chaffey High School Football Boosters.

PTA award

Dolores Weck has received the Honorary Service Award from the PTA at Sycamore Elementary School, Upland, in recognition of her service to the school, its students and the community.

Her activities have included working with the Mt. Baldy Aquatic Club of which she is a board member and secretary for the Eastern section of the Southern Pacific Association of the American Athletic Union.

She is youth choir director at Pilgrim Congregational Church, Pomona, and co-team mother for her son's soccer team.

Service

Ruth Pearson is a co-recipient of the Sierra Vista School PTA Honorary Service Award for 1978. She was selected for her special interest in and outstanding work with the youth activities of the school and the PTA.

Awards

Alta Loma halfback Tony Massagli has been selected to the all-CIF (3A) first soccer team for the 1978 season.

Massagli, a junior, previously had been named most valuable player for his team and the Hacienda League. He scored 13 goals and was credited with 16 assists for the campaign as the Braves won the HL title and earned a berth in the 3A semifinals.

Massagli, who is also a place kicker on the Alta Loma football team and a sprinter in track, plans to attend the Wessex Soccer Camp in Winchester, England, in mid-summer.

He will be part of a team coached by Brian Hunter, Ontario High School's head soccer coach.

Earning second-team honors were Massagli's teammate, junior forward Karim Fernandes, and Ontario Christian's senior forward Bernie Teunissen.

Best time

Steve Scott of Upland and UC Irvine ran the sixth-fastest mile time ever recorded by an American—3:53.92—at the fifth annual Meet of Champions in March.

Scott, a 21-year-old senior at UCI, stepped out to a big lead at the start of the race and left the field well behind by turning 440 laps in 56.7, 59.8, 59.7 and 57.7 seconds.

Scott's early intentions, apparently, were to better his own lifetime mark of 3:55.1 he set in the Penn Relays last season. But with conditions nearly perfect, the former Highlander star was able to shave 1.2 seconds off his previous best.

With his performance, Scott moved ahead of both Dick Buerkle (3:54.9) and the late Steve Prefontaine (3:54.6) on the all-time list of top American miles.

Still ahead of Scott are

Dave Wottle and Rick Wohlhuter (both 3:53.3), Tony Waldrop (3:53.2), Marty Liquori (3:52.2) and Jim Ryun (3:51.1).

Officers

New officers at Ontario-Pomona Association for Retarded Citizens include Donald Wette, president; Marilyn Nisbett, vice president; Edith Harbin, secretary; and John McCallum, treasurer; also Anita Catalano, Richard Pearson, Richard Rhea and Robert Sutton, new board members. Don Hardy is past president.

Continuing board members are Virginia Allen, Donald Bollinger, Lorraine Buchanan, John Calvin, Muriel Desilets, Rudy Guzman, Donald Hardy, Robert Schauer, Harry Sippel, Underhill and Bill Vermilya. Nominating committee members were Underhill, Vermilya and Sippel.

Honored as five-year employees of OPARC were: Judith Cook, infant stimulation instructor and coordinator of the Community Outreach Parent Educators; Lilah Beer, instructor; Bessie Broughton, Diversified Industries superintendent; and Joanne Travers, parent educator of COPE.

Mary Boyd Merrill was recognized for her 15 years as OPARC's executive director.

Athlete

Bruce La Vallee, Chaffey College basketball player, has been selected to the All-Mission Conference Team for 1977-78.

La Vallee, a freshman from Montclair High School, scored 301 points in 14 conference games for a 21.5 average. He also ranked among the circuit's top rebounders.

For the season, La Vallee was credited with 517 points in 28 games for an 18.5 average, fourth best among all MC players. His 226 rebounds and 8.7 average ranked him sixth among MC standouts.

Achievement

Winners of the Bank of America Achievement Awards from Montclair High School are Kristi

Helm for fine arts, Jodie Hickman for vocational arts, Diane Stern for math and science and Jaime Wilson for liberal arts.

Award

Jack Bond has been named co-recipient of the honorary service award presented by Magnolia Elementary School in Upland.

Active with the Ontario Parkway Kiwanis, Bond is a member of the Upland Mayor's Advisory Committee.

He has served the Girl Scouts and is a member of the Upland AYSO, where he is the current treasurer, assistant coach and member of the field committee which is building six new permanent soccer fields in Upland.

Older residents fit into community college life

By Gloria Nezat and Lynne Locke
"Education broadens a person's perspective on life. This includes home, social life, and employment," according to Marian Cochran, one of the increasing number of older people joining the traditional 18 and 19 year olds at Chaffey College.

Older people return to college for a number of reasons, ranging from curiosity to enjoyment of learning. And their backgrounds are as varied as their reasons for attending college.

Cochran has attended college part time, off and on, since 1969, accumulating 83 units thus far. The 36-year-old Upland resident is especially interested in literature, but she is also working on classes in career education. She presently counsels students in career education at Alta Loma High School where her husband teaches.

"It's exciting to help a young person find a job that satisfies his talents and interests. That's why I like working in career education. It can suit everyone's needs," she commented. Cochran also notes she is a good listener. "I had to be; I worked in psychiatric hospitals for seven years," she confided.

Before she lived in Thailand while married to a Thai, she said, "I love Thailand. It's a beautiful country," she said and added, "The people are so friendly. I learned a lot about people from that experience."

But returning to college caused "culture shock" for Dalton who had already earned a bachelor of science degree in psychology at a Los Angeles college. "I was used to living in Los Angeles while attending a four-year college. Everything was discussed openly in the classroom," he said and added, "I wish people would familiarize themselves with the philosophy and/or religion that they profess to believe in and talk about it, not hide it. People don't say what they mean anymore."

Dalton's interests include both philosophy and religion, subjects he feels are not too far apart. "People don't want to discuss religion. They are too defensive about a subject that needs to be discussed openly so we can learn from — and appreciate — each other's interests and ideas," he said.

Dalton was a social worker for Los Angeles County until a motorcycle accident 12 years ago ended his career. He has been slowly going blind as a result. "It is terrifying to slowly go blind. My world becomes smaller and smaller," he said and noted, "I pay more attention to what people say. Especially now that I can't always rely on reading their expressions."

Freeway supporters push veto override to save right of way

By PETER WONG
Though they admit it won't be easy, Foothill Freeway supporters will try to persuade the state Legislature to override the governor's veto of a bill that would protect the route until the freeway can be built.

The governing board of the San Bernardino Associated Governments, the county's transportation planning agency, voted its support of an override attempt. The chief author of the vetoed bill, Assemblyman Bill Lancaster, R-Covina, is expected to call for an override vote.

Under legislative rules, the vote must be taken by April 21, 60 days after Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. vetoed the bill (AB 469). Upland Mayor George M. Gibson told the transportation board the attempt would be at best "difficult" but he (Lancaster) feels there is a chance.

If the bill is to become law over Brown's veto, two-thirds of the members of both houses of the Legislature must vote to override. This amounts to 54 of the 80 Assembly members and 27 of the 40 senators.

Since the bill originated in the Assembly, the first override vote must be taken there. The Senate would follow only if the Assembly votes to override.

Tony Malone, administrator of the Foothill Freeway Association, conceded that an override attempt would be "an uphill battle." But he said freeway supporters have decided to pursue "every route that will keep the pressure on."

The override attempt is a switch in strategy for freeway supporters. Earlier, they had concluded their best chance of protecting the route was to present their case to the new California Transportation Commission. They still hope to appear before the commission in Los Angeles later this month.

Rancho Ride canceled, replacement considered

The Chino Rancho Ride won't take place this year, but a number of horses and riders are expected to be hoofing it through the Chino Hills in late May in a substitute ride now being planned.

Plans are still being hashed out, according to Ted Crawford of the horsemen's association, but it is expected the new ride will be held on or about May 21. Organizers started trying to secure permission from land owners and to lay groundwork for the ride, Crawford said, soon after the Rancho Ride Association, which sponsors the Rancho Ride, cancelled its event for this year.

The new ride might involve a three-hour foray into the hills, Crawford said, but additional events and activities would take place not in the hills but at a stable which would be the starting and ending point of the ride. Plans are expected to be completed in a couple of weeks, Crawford said.

Freeway supporters will have to rely on mustering widespread legislative resentment toward the Brown administration's transportation policies and translate that into votes if they are to have any chance. Democratic legislative leaders are expected to try to avert political embarrassment to Brown that would result if an override attempt were successful.

In the past three decades, the Legislature has overridden only three vetoes by governors. The freeway bill would require the California Department of Transportation to protect the corridor from La Verne through Claremont, Upland and Rancho Cucamonga against development.

It would require the purchase of land in the right of way in "hardship or protective cases."

Wanderings, with Walt Brasch

New invention takes the mess out of war

Hans P. Grossbaum, the president's special assistant for weapons development, rushed into the office of Billy Joe Hogfeathers, the president's senior advisor, to announce the development of a new weapons system.

"Hi, y'all," said Billy Joe. "What's all on your mind?"

Grossbaum unpacked his attache case and let fall hundreds of papers — blueprints, charts, statistics, and population surveys.

"As you know," said Grossbaum, "the president has made many overtures to the Russians and Chinese, the Arabs and the Jews, the Georgians and the rest of the country, to convince them that we are a peace-loving nation."

"That he did, Grossie, m'boy. That he did. Why, just the other day he pulled all our troops out of Luxembourg."

"Exactly! There's no question that the president wants peace. But the history of humanity shows brutality in its weapons of war, and I'm sure that the president, while protecting our frontiers, needs a weapon that's clean — something that isn't messy or causes people to throw up in disgust."

"You're right on target there, boy. Nothing's worse than having a messy weapon."

"Precisely! The cavemen had rocks and club, and you know how messy that was."

"Oh, messy, messy, messy!"

"Then there were bows and arrows. Later, there were crossbows. Why, Mr. Hogfeathers, did you know that at one time the civilized nations of the world banned the crossbow as being too messy? They said it was an inhumane weapon."

"I done heard something 'bout that. But with the coming of gunpowder—"

"Sure!" said Grossbaum, excitedly interrupting. "It was gunpowder that was the real problem. Before, all you did was hit your enemy over the head. Now with gunpowder, you could destroy things. Like forts and flagpoles. And when it was all over, the enemy was still there, meaner than ever. It was all such a waste of money."

"I like what you're saying. As you know, the president is trying to save as much money as he can."

"Exactly!" With guns and bombs going off and destroying things, there was no telling who would get killed. And the cost to rebuild everything — well, the countries could be bankrupt before the war was over. Then no one would win."

"Keep talkin', boy. I like the way your mouth moves."

"Remember World War II? We built the atomic bomb. Do you know that although it killed only a few thousand people, it destroyed a whole city? Two of them in fact. So, when the war was over, and we were declared to be the winners, we had to rebuild those cities. A waste! — Just because we couldn't kill more people!"

"Don't let them dewdrops fall, boy. You're speaking up a mouthful! ... But what's so all-fired important that you broke in on my prayer meeting?"

"It's a bomb that kills people—"

"Good, Good. That's what I like to hear."

"But it doesn't destroy any property. It's quiet and safe. No blood. And no destroyed buildings. It leaves the buildings, but kills the people."

"I've had this cold the past few days, and it tends to block up my ears. Maybe

I didn't hear you right. Did you say that you have a bomb—"

"Yes, we have a bomb."

"—that kills people but doesn't make a mess of it by leaving a lot of blood lying around?"

"Yes, we have a bomb that does that."

"—and that it doesn't destroy buildings, but lets them stand just the way they were?"

"Yes, that's right. It'll kill millions and not even leave a trace of human life. Then, whoever wins the war doesn't have to pay all that much to refix the country."

"What do you call this thing?"

"A neutron bomb."

"Grossie," said the special assistant, thinking rather hard. "Isn't a neutron a zero—something that's neutral — sorta like no charge in an atom — neither positive nor negative?"

"You sure have it together," said Grossbaum.

impressed by Hogfeathers' logic.

"But how does a zero cause all this destruction?"

"The neutron doesn't do anything — it's what other things do to the neutron."

"Grossbaum," said Hogfeathers, scratching his hand. "I'm just a hic country boy, so all you big-time city people could just be funnin' me."

"No, sir. Mr. Hogfeathers. We're very serious. We have a bomb that eliminates life as we know it, but leaves buildings. It's the modern way to go."

"It doesn't leave any life?"

"No, All gone."

"Not even bunnies. I kinda like the bunnies."

"A bunny," said Grossbaum seriously. "could be a key to the overthrow of this government."

Hogfeathers shook his head, trying to understand the workings of the special weapons development section. "Why would you want to kill off people ... and bunnies ... they seem so useful to me. Wouldn't it be better to destroy their buildings and their land and the things they own and force them to surrender — just like the good old days?"

"The good old days ended when Cain took a rock and killed Abel. This bomb is more efficient. It kills people and animals and all life as we know it, but it does it neat and clean."

"Grossbaum," said Hogfeathers not as confused as Grossbaum thought he was. "maybe the cost to rebuild a city that we bomb wouldn't be as bad as we thought if we have some people to help rebuild."

"But people are subversives!" said Grossbaum. "they can destroy things and make life unbearable. And this bomb — the neutron bomb — is a humane bomb."

"I don't know. I just don't know," said the president's special assistant, "but I tend to believe that maybe the president won't go for this. I think he'd have a few reservations about the sense in all this."

"Mr. Hogfeathers," said Grossbaum with greater confidence than anyone in the nation's capital. "even if the president doesn't go for this, there are 535 legislators who might."

"A pity," said Hogfeathers sadly. "A pity."

Poison proof your home

NEW YORK, N.Y. — This year, why not observe National Poison Prevention Week — this month by making sure all potential poisons remain out of the reach of children?

Youngsters up to age 5, and especially those at age 2, are the most frequent victims of accidental poisoning, according to a life insurance company's health and safety education division. "At these ages," said Clarence Pearson, assistant vice-president of the division, "children's curiosity causes them to explore, which is a desirably quality. But they can run into danger because they're too young to know safe materials from dangerous ones. If curiosity leads them to touch or swallow a substance they shouldn't, a poison crisis can result."

"Poisons in the home take many forms," said Pearson, "including medications, cleaning materials, insecticides and even some houseplants. These substances should be carefully stored and carefully discarded. Poisonous house - plants should be kept where children can't reach them.

"Some progress has been made in reducing the dangers to children, such as childproof packaging for certain medications," he said. "But so many potential hazards exist that adults should be ever-alert to the dangers, and know how to respond."

In most cases it's best not to act without consulting a doctor or poison expert, but there are things to do to be prepared for an emergency. For instance, post the number of the local poison control center near the phone. Usually part of a hospital emergency facility, the center can quickly dispense up-to-date information on poisons and antidotes. And it's a good idea to have a 1-ounce bottle of syrup of ipecac handy in case you need to induce vomiting. In some cases, however, it is best not to induce vomiting, which could cause double damage. The label on the container may provide such information. Save the container of the poison that has been ingested.

Psychologists agree that for most people, it will never be easy to break away from the shoulds and oughts that worry our leisure time. But it can be done. Let's take a look at one way: take a walk.

On this walk, go with a feeling of peace, with an unhurried awareness that this is for you. Loosen up and let your mind flow wherever.

Proper cat grooming is somewhat different. A long-haired cat is groomed

You can teach an older pet to tolerate grooming by doing only a small section at a time and being careful not to pull the skin. In the beginning you may need a friend to restrain the pet if it persists in wriggling away.

If you think your pet is losing too much hair, check with your veterinarian. Excessive shedding, especially when the skin is also irritated, is not normal. Your pet deserves the benefit of professional medical attention.

African exhibit useful memorial

An exhibit at Pilgrim Place of authentic art objects from Africa marks the completion of a useful memorial to the lives of two former residents of this religious and cultural retirement center.

Pilgrim Place to which Miss Cowles gave many objects of cultural or artistic interest such as the dress of a Zulu bride, a beaded swagger stick, carvings, mats and metal work.

The Zulu bead work, palm fiber weaving and wood carvings on display come from the region in South Africa where Ruth C. Cowles, one of the sisters memorialized, worked as director of a social settlement and where her sister, Helen Cowles McCutchan, lived during her early years. Mrs. McCutchan later served for a number of years as librarian of the Claremont Colleges before her marriage to Dr. Robert Guy McCutchan of Pilgrim Place.

Friends of the two sisters funded the large custom-made showcases now located in Porter Hall. They are made of natural birch, glass and plexiglass. Richard B. Peterson, director of the Los Angeles County Fine Arts Exhibition and a friend of Pilgrim Place, created the design for the cases.

Many of the objects exhibited come from the Permanent Collection of

The displays were arranged by the Friends of Pilgrim Place, an organization of 340 members whose purpose is to focus attention on the traveled residents of Pilgrim Place.

Southland Lutherans elect head 3rd time

500 delegates from 200 congregations of the Southern California District of The Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod re-elected Dr. Arnold Kuntz as district president for an unprecedented third term. In order to make this re-election possible, the convention adopted a constitutional change which removed the former limit of eight years for the president's term.

By a commanding proportion the convention adopted the change and re-elected Kuntz who has been viewed as a moderating influence within the national denomination. The international president of the 6,000 - congregation synod, Dr. J.A.O. Preus of St. Louis, commended the convention for its wisdom in re-electing Kuntz. Preus noted an upward trend in several growth factors for the synod following a 10-year internal struggle that finds the denomination today reaffirming its traditional biblical conservative direction.

In a further election the Rev. Loran Kramer of Goleta was elected to the first vice presidency of the district. Ratification of a full - time district mission executive also was seen as a major decision and reflected a "move forward" in the establishment of new ministries. A resolution to expand urban and minority ministries included special emphasis on development of Hispanic ministries in the Southwest. It was noted that by 1999 the Los Angeles metropolitan area will include approximately two million Spanish - speaking residents. The President also urged support of the $15 million Black Centennial offering and underscored work among Indian Americans. Restructuring of district organization included accents on regionalism rather than centralization of authority, circuit forums, and the establishment of three district departments: parish services, missions, and administration (finance).

The convention also voted funds to produce a children's TV program which will be aired in the near future in various areas of Southern California. The producer of the new series is the Rev. Ardon Albrecht of Lutheran television.

Abortion discussion culminated in a reaffirmation of synod opposition to the practice. Delegates asked that counseling be emphasized to provide alternatives for women considering abortion.

In other convention action, Preus stated support for educational projects of synod including Christ College Irvine, and conventioners solidly endorsed Christ College support.

Service set

Robert Lipman Nissim Klug, who will reach the age of 13, will participate in a service 8 p.m. Friday, April 14 at Temple Shalom of Ontario, 963 W. Sixth St. He will be "Bar-Mitzvah" 9 a.m. April 15. The "Oneg-Shabbat" following the service will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. E. Klug in honor of their son. A reception will follow the service Saturday morning.

St. Paul's

Youth minister Steve Erkel will speak on "Them vs. Us" at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at St. Paul's Congregational Church, 616 S. Sycamore St., Claremont. Nursery care is provided for young children, and a social time follows the service.

Mariners

First Presbyterian Church of Upland will commemorate Mariners Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday when the Yacht Club Mariners will conduct the service. Don and Wanda Swihart will speak on "The Place of Mariners in the Church." Members of the Mariners will also serve as greeters, ushers, and choir. The couples and singles group meets monthly for a dinner, program, and Christian fellowship. Howard and Helen Kilmurray of Alta Loma are skippers for the group this year.

Healing

The Rev. Nelva Clark will speak on "The Healing Power" at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at the Church of Religious Science, 509 S. College Ave., Claremont. She is a minister, public school teacher, and teacher of accredited Science of Mind courses.

Unitarian

The Rev. Ernest Howard will speak on "The Radical Tradition" 10:30 a.m.

Sunday at the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley, 9185 Monte Vista, Montclair. It is the final sermon in a series on major social and political traditions shaping American life and institutions. Nursery care and children's church school classes are provided at the same time.

Christ church

Christ Lutheran Church of Chino will participate in an appeal to build a new library at California Lutheran College, Thousand Oaks. The appeal will be presented at the 8:15 and 10:45 a.m. services Sunday at the church, 5500 Francis Ave., Chino. Dr. A. L. Plueger will give the sermon. Child care is provided, and a social time follows the services. Bible classes for all ages meet at 9:30 a.m.

Nazarene

"Moses' Song: a True Test of Maturity" will be the topic at the worship service Sunday at Foothill Communities Church of the Nazarene, 9944 Highland, Alta Loma. The sermon is one in a series on "Moses' Feet of Clay."

Mr. and Mrs. John Etnier of Upland will show slides of New Zealand at the 6 p.m. service Sunday.

Relationships

"Dynamics of Human Relationships" will be the topic of a seminar 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 22 at Church of the Celebration, 599 S. Barranca Ave., Suite L101-2, Covina.

Grace holds annual conference

The annual missions conference will be held through Sunday at Grace Baptist Church, 1515 South Glendora Avenue, Glendora. There will be 17 missionaries and mission representatives in attendance to report on the status of outreach in their respective parts of the world. Pastor H. Ronald Harper has invited the community to attend these interesting and informative meetings 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Dr. Bruce Ker, former missionary to the Philippines, Ceylon and Hong Kong, will be the main speaker and will preach at 8:15 and 11 a.m. worship services Sunday.

Ker is now dean of student affairs at Western Conservative Baptist Seminary, Portland, Oregon, where he has also served as professor of missions. Harper will finalize the series by summarizing where Grace Baptist Church has come from and where it hopes to be in the immediate years ahead with respect to missions.

Members of the congregation will be provided with complete family names and addresses of missionaries supported by Grace so they may correspond regularly. They will also be provided with opportunities to visit local mission organizations to better understand the workings of such agencies. Further, they will be encouraged to become personally involved by providing hospitality and other support to missionary families as they return home on furlough.

Coffee meetings with missionaries will be held in the homes of many church members Friday.

For information call the church office, (213) 335-4067.

Church calls new pastor

Foothill Baptist Church of Claremont has a new pastor, Roy Buckelew.

Born and raised in Oklahoma, Buckelew now resides in Upland with his wife, Louise, and two young daughters, K. and Edie. He is a graduate of Oklahoma Baptist University, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, and worked on his masters degree at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. He is presently working toward a doctorate in communications at the University of Southern California.

Buckelew has pastored churches in Oklahoma, Texas and most recently the First Baptist Church of Upland. He has held many offices at both the association and state level of Southern Baptist work ranging from moderator to president of the California

Southern Baptist Ministers Conference.

His civic responsibilities have included board of directors of the YMCA in Ontario, president of Upland Kiwanis Club, and president of Upland Ministers Association.

Foothill Baptist Church is located at 1364 N. Towne Ave., Claremont, just north of Foothill Blvd. For more information call 624-8610.

Parents: responsible for children's learning

Parents have the "basic responsibility for the education of their children," according to six youth members of the National PTA Board of Directors. Suzie Blaustone of Orange, Calif., who calls herself a "big supporter" of the notion that "education begins in the home and ends in the home," puts it rather bluntly. "I think parents are the backbone of a child's education," she said. Suzie also believes that "it's up to the parents to know if a child is having trouble or is weak in an area. I just don't think there's any excuse for a parent not knowing about the education of a child."

Another youth member agreed with Suzie and proceeded to criticize those parents living in his area who are "more interested in going to 'country club' than in keeping up with their child's education." Suzie pointed out that parents "must be educated as to what they should expect of their children." In her opinion, parents should stress the joy and satisfaction of learning. This is the key, she said, as to whether the child will become a good student. All parents should find that they have a "place in the school," Suzie said, since "so much of their child's life is dependent upon that school." All parents have "a place" in PTA work as well, she added.

Paul Notaras of New York called the school just "one aspect" of a child's total education. It is the parent who has to contribute to the "total upbringing of the child," he said. It is the parent, too, he pointed out, who must provide a home life that aids learning. Cindy Claiborne of Georgia said, "The greatest influence on me is example — the way a person talks, acts, dresses. I don't think parents should ask anything of a child that they don't ask of themselves." Cynthia Hodge of Vermont commented, "Some people look at their children as a problem. But I think that parents and children, ideally, should be able to talk together about anything and not be inhibited." Bill Datema of Missouri noted, "It's not always that parents don't spend enough time with their children but that they don't give enough thought to the fact that they are shaping the attitudes of these kids." The students agreed that they had benefited from growing up "with television." But they were critical, too, of the TV networks. Their criticism centered on the detrimental effects of violent TV programs and on the fact that television "doesn't allow children to use their imagination." Parents have a responsibility, they said, to help select the programs their children watch — and to put the programs in perspective for the children. "There's no reason," the youth members agreed, "why parents can't use common sense and talk to their children about what they see on TV." In discussing the role and responsibilities of the teacher, the youths all expressed a desire for a more personal relationship with their instructors. One of the youth members was critical of teachers in his school system who "will only do what's in their contract and that's it." This comment prompted Cynthia Hodge to add: "When I was in high school I had a lot of help from teachers who were my friends. And I think that's really important." Manuel Esquivel of North Carolina sees teachers as having "one main responsibility": to be on a one-to-one basis with each student — "no matter how many students they have." "I think that if they really want to be effective teachers they will somehow make time for individual contact with students. Five minutes is better than nothing at all. It makes a student feel more secure. I know it does me." Bill Datema suggested that teachers visit the

Foreign pupils seeking homes

Eager foreign exchange students, age 15-18 — or younger for summer only — are waiting for YES to give them your family's name and address so they may write to their U.S. YES family-to-be for their summer, first semester, or school year stay in the United States. Host families need not be wealthy but comfortable in providing the student with meals and a bed and the love and encouragement in activities and understanding which they offer their own children. There is an income tax deduction for this effort, and the students bring their own spending money. Families may be single parent, small children, or no children, as well as mother, father, and teen-agers. The important thing is the desire to introduce the student to the constructive cultural activities of the USA and as are available in your school and community for teen-agers today, and your interest in the student's introduction to his own culture. Interest, understanding, stability, patience, and love are what you are asked to offer. Youth Exchange Services (YES) is a private non-profit organization designated by the U.S. State Department to provide the service of cultural exchange between countries for teen-age students and families for the purpose of better international relations. Write or call YES, P.O. Box 4020, San Clemente, CA. 92672 or phone (714) 492-7907.

DEADLINE — Marsha Tarter of the Internal Revenue Service reminds taxpayers federal income tax returns must be postmarked by midnight Monday.

Greyhound simplifies traveling for disabled

Greyhound Lines bus service is introducing three improvements in its Helping Hand Service to make travel more accessible and economical for the handicapped:

— Testing of a kneeling feature on its buses which makes boarding and alighting much easier for the handicapped and the elderly.

— Granting free transportation on an escorted tour for the companion of a handicapped person.

— Allowing deaf persons not accompanied by an attendant to bring their trained dog aboard the bus.

The kneeling feature, which lowers the front step of the bus approximately four inches, was installed on 30 buses early in 1977 on an experimental basis. The system is activated by the driver while the bus is at rest and exhausts air from the air suspension system to lower the front of the bus.

As a safety feature, the system is designed to lower the bus only when the entrance door is closed and the parking brake is "on." Once the parking brake is released and the bus put in gear, air is immediately reintroduced to the suspension system and the bus is ready for normal operation.

The Greyhound Lines Helping Hand Service has allowed the companion to travel free to assist the handicapped person in boarding and exiting the bus and assist with all the person's bus travel needs.

Under the new program, the Helping Hand Service has been extended to escorted tours. The cost of the transportation portion of the tour is waived for the handicapped person's companion to provide the necessary assistance while on the tour. The reduction in cost does not apply to other tour costs such as hotels, sightseeing or meals.

The third new feature of Greyhound's Helping Hand Service allows deaf persons who are not accompanied by an attendant to bring their trained dog aboard the bus, a provision previously available to blind persons only.

With the recent development of training centers for dogs to assist the deaf, the program has been expanded to include all properly identified blind or deaf persons. Dogs must be harnessed and lie or stand at the feet of their master.

A brochure containing full details about the Helping Hand Service is available by writing to Helping Hand Service, Department S, Greyhound Tower, Phoenix, Ariz. 85077.

It is possible to cut health care costs without compromising your health. And with rising medical costs, there are few, if any, health care consumers who cannot afford to make the effort.

Barbara Vosen, director of health education and staff development for HMO International, a prepaid health care service with 19 centers throughout Southern California, has some pointers on how to get more for your medical dollars.

In order to achieve cost reduction, she said, changes must be made on both the providing and consuming side of the system to bring them into mutual pursuit of the common goal of maintaining health.

Basically that means patient education, she says. Helping the patient learn how to help himself.

That means a change in the traditional medical model in which patients have been the passive recipients of medical care which was administered to them without their understanding of what was being done to them or why.

It means patients asking questions, and health professionals answering them. It means both sides making a concerted effort at communicating.

The first step in that direction, she says, is finding a doctor with whom you have a rapport. Shop around for your primary care physician and find one with whom you feel comfortable, because ideally he will be providing your care on the basis of both physical and emotional factors, which means you will need to be able to speak freely with him.

After he has taken your medical history, ask questions about the information he's gathered.

Find out if your family history indicates a predisposition for certain diseases and if so what actions you can take to minimize your risk of developing them. If you have existing health problems, ask what life-style changes you can make to hasten your recovery or minimize the effects of the disease if it's chronic.

Learn by questioning and by paying attention to your body what is normal for you and what symptoms merit medical attention. It is as important to know when not to waste your time and money on an office visit as it is to know when you should get medical attention, Vosen says.

Establish a dialogue with the doctor or his designee so you can evaluate a care plan together that is both effective and workable. If certain provisions of the plan seem impossible, ask about alternatives and work out a compromise that lies somewhere between the extremes. Finding an equilibrium between the doctor's standpoint and feasibility from the patient's standpoint is one of the single most important factors in making a treatment plan work, Vosen says.

Strive for optimal utilization of health care services rather than under use or overkill.

Under use can result in serious problems if early symptoms are ignored. Overkill can be just plain costly without providing proportionate benefits. Not everyone needs a complete physical examination every year. Find out from your doctor what tests you should have done frequently and which types of examinations need only be done every two or three years. Then schedule them accordingly.

Choose a medical facility in accordance with your needs. You needn't go to the most technically sophisticated hospital in your area for a simple surgical procedure, she says. Your costs at that institution will be higher. But the quality of care may not be commensurate with the cost.

In other words, you'll be paying more than you need to for care you could get elsewhere for less. But don't hesitate to go for the best when it's warranted.

And be willing to accept the services of a highly trained technician in the administration of routine tests or services. This is one way, Vosen points out, that costs can be cut without compromising quality. In fact, the nurse practitioner or technician is often able to devote more time to answering questions and explaining procedures than the physician.

Practice fishing in pool

Got a friend with a swimming pool...a good friend who won't mind you turning his backyard oasis into a practice fishing hole?

If so, you're well on the way to improving your angling skills, say the experts in Mercury outboards' fishing department. They recommend practice casting as an ideal method for learning to catch fish.

Each kind of fishing lure has its own particular action. The only way you can learn how to use that action properly is to watch the lure in water. A swimming pool, with its clear water, is an ideal practice area. You can cast and retrieve all you want, changing rhythm, speed and rod movement to achieve the action you desire.

It's also possible to improve your casting skills by practice casting in a swimming pool. All you need are a few home-made plastic rings which float. Build them out of flexible tubing which you can form into circles of various sizes. Tape the open ends together and float the rings on top of the pool.

U.S. ranger program starts in California

The U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management (BLM), has begun a law enforcement ranger program with 13 BLM rangers, who have law enforcement authority in the California Desert Conservation Area (CDCA) where BLM administers more than 12 million acres of federal public land.

"The Ranger program for the California Desert Conservation Area is mandated by the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (FLPMA)," according to Guy Martin, assistant secretary for Land and Water Resources.

"Congress recognized the unique problems facing BLM in the California desert, from theft of valuable cactus, to off-road vehicle abuse, to the destruction of scientific and cultural resources, and ordered the secretary to respond with a skilled group of rangers," he noted.

Only uniformed BLM employees with law enforcement responsibilities will function as "rangers." The 13 have completed a mandatory 360 hours of training, including an eight-week course at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center and a final 40-hour BLM natural resource law enforcement course held at the California Division of Forestry Academy.

During the 40-hour course, rangers learned specifics of BLM's program to help them in enforcing federal laws on California federal public lands. Nine of the rangers have prior law enforcement experience with federal, state, or local government agencies. All 13 have a four-year degree in a field related to management or protection of public land resources, along with experience in resource management.

Ed Hastey, BLM's California state director, said the rangers will have a wide range of options in obtaining compliance to federal laws, and they will use the lowest key approach in every case where it is possible.

"The spectrum begins with public education at the scene of the violation," he said.

"The ranger will point out that a violation has taken place and explain why such acts should not occur. The ranger will ask for compliance with the law. Our experience with ranger field work to date has shown that by emphasizing environmental education and awareness, we can efficiently gain compliance from most people," he said.

"We believe most violations involve non-deliberate abuse of natural resources and that almost everyone will readily agree not to repeat the violation. This should take care of more than 95 percent of the incidents."

Hastey said, "The next step — unless the offense is deliberate or extremely serious — would be an oral or written warning. If a person persists in violations, the next level of enforcement will be to issue a citation under certain laws where that is permissible. Here, again, is an attempt to handle the offense with the least amount of inconvenience to the violate."

"The last resort — arrest — will be used only in the most extreme cases," Hastey emphasized. "If the violator refuses to provide adequate identification, if there is a good reason to believe that a violator would not appear before a magistrate or federal judge if cited, or if the violator is uncooperative or abusive, then an arrest could be made. It is our earnest desire to resolve all violations at the lowest possible level, and we will do our utmost to maintain that policy."

The authority of the rangers to issue citations will initially be limited to violations under three laws — Land and Water Conservation Fund Act, Sikes Act, and National Trail Systems Act — and sections of Title 18 of the U.S. Code.

The purpose of the Sikes Act is to protect and develop wildlife habitats. Land and Water Conservation Fund and National Trail Systems acts will be used to enforce vehicle management policies, use procedures on the Pacific Crest Trail, and use fees.

Title 18 includes theft of government property, fires left unattended, willfully setting fire to forest, trees cut or injured, forcibly assaulting, impeding, or intimidating a federal officer; and using a deadly or dangerous weapon in such an act.

While citation authority is now limited to the previously mentioned federal statutes, arrest authority extends over a wider range, including regulations made by the Department of the Interior to implement the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA).

Regulations adopted to date under FLPMA include those intended to prevent unauthorized commercial exploitation of the desert plants and to provide for closure of federal public lands because of fire danger or for other management purposes, including regulating vehicle use.

Rangers will have a wide variety of duties which will include gathering information for resource inventories, working with other agencies, and preparation of interpretive programs. Visitor services will include providing environmental education information, helping in various emergency situations, search and rescue, hazard reduction, and protection of publicly owned resources and facilities. The ranger's varied duties may include fire fighting and investigation of trespass.

BLM does not plan at this time to assign rangers anywhere other than California. Seven rangers have been assigned to the Riverside district which includes El Centro and Barstow resource areas.

Fish on quiet banks

For those of you who long to fish on the quiet banks of a mountain retreat, surrounded by tall pines rustling in the morning wind, your dreams can now become a reality. Lake Gregory, San Bernardino County's newest Regional Park, is open to the public, and the fishing is great.

The County's newest park includes 100 acres of water, picnic areas, restrooms, and plenty of parking space. Fishing along the dam and perimeter of the park is free.

Tips on freeing autos offered

Motorists going to snow play areas, ski resorts or driving through places where snow is likely are advised by the Automobile Club of Southern California to make advance preparations for the possibility of their vehicle becoming stuck in the snow.

Robert J. Cheney, the Auto Club's public safety manager, said drivers can help free cars that are not too seriously immobilized if they follow simple precautions — such as carrying a shovel and sand in the trunk — and know a few "tricks of the trade."

Cheney offers some suggestions for freeing a vehicle.

Try forming a runway in deep snow by shoveling a path or rocking the car gently backwards and forwards in increasing lengths, until a runway of about a car's length is formed ahead of the wheels.

Then try to drive the car out. Shift from reverse to low repeatedly while passengers or helpers push from the sides of the car, where they'll be clear if your "take-off" is successful. (Don't do this for more than a few minutes as the transmission can be damaged easily.) Use gentle, steady pressure on the accelerator. Flopping the gas pedal will only cause the rear wheels to spin.

Sand or other coarse material sprinkled in the runways in front and back of the rear wheels also will help provide traction. Common unused kitty litter works just as well, besides being lighter and easier to store in the trunk than sand.

A bumper jack base or hubcap makes a good impromptu shovel for digging out, Cheney noted.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MONTCLAIR, CALIFORNIA, CONTROLLING THE RIGHT OF NEW RESIDENTIAL BUILDING DEVELOPMENT IN THE CITY AND SPHERE OF INFLUENCE OF THE CITY OF MONTCLAIR

The City Council of the City of Montclair, California does hereby ordain as follows:

SECTION I. PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY

A. Findings

(1) The City of Montclair has heretofore established that the sewage effluent generated by the City of Montclair and other surrounding communities immediately threatens to exceed the effluent limitation for Regional Plan No. 1 determined to be safe by the California Regional Water Quality Control Board of the Santa Ana Region, and that uncontrolled growth in the City together with unmanaged growth in the surrounding communities, would increase the effluent flow to the extent that the effluent generated by new development would exceed the safe amount of effluent delivered to Regional Plan No. 1.

(2) The City of Montclair has for the purpose of complying within allocation plan agreed to by the communities contributing sewage to Regional Plan No. 1 enacted a resolution implementing a sewage capacity allocation plan which contemplates and requires the managed growth plan to the end that the allocations shall not be exceeded.

(3) That the City of Montclair has experienced rapid residential development in a widely dispersed pattern which has overburdened municipal services and further unmanaged growth may hinder the ability of the City to adequately provide water facilities, traffic circulation facilities, storm drains, police and fire protection, parks, and a balanced community between types of land uses in different parts of the City. This rapid residential growth in the West End of San Bernardino County may also adversely impact the air quality in the region, the ambient noise level of the community, the aesthetic nature of the City, the basic quality of life, and the basic educational facilities of the school districts serving the community.

(4) That the City of Montclair intends to establish a Growth Control Policy as a part of a Housing Element of its General Plan and to have hearings relative to the Housing Element and it is in the best interest of citizens of the City to adopt this interim development control ordinance to protect the plan revision in legislative amendment process, to prevent the intrusion of incompatible uses into areas that would be subject to the revisions in amendments, and to enable and encourage wide spread citizen involvement in the planning and implementation process.

(5) Continued unrestrained residential growth will severely impair the City's ability to effectuate the goals and policies of the General Plan and will materially adversely affect the health and welfare of the citizens of the City.

B. Purpose
By reason, the findings set forth in paragraph A, the City has developed certain primary goals and objectives consistent with the General Plan, to be implemented by a Growth Management Program. These primary goals constituting the purpose of this Growth Management ordinance are as follows:

- (1) Preserve and enhance efficiency of municipal services allowing time to provide public facilities adequate to meet the expanding service needs.
- (2) Coordinate growth with needed public improvement.
- (3) Minimize impact of construction activity adjacent to residential neighborhoods.
- (4) Maintain and enhance the level of administrative services.
- (5) Provide for the gradual development of remaining undeveloped areas.
- (6) Maintain and enhance primary health standards.

Consistent with the goals of other specific goals of this Growth Management Program are as follows:

- a. Provide sufficient opportunity to adequately address issues of quality, environmental impact, and social consequences in the development review process of all residential developments.
- b. Coordinate residential, commercial growth, and public improvements (such as arterial roads, parks, etc.) in order to insure adequate service capabilities at the proper time and locations.
- c. Provide for gradual and controlled urbanization of remaining undeveloped areas in order to minimize potential adverse impacts, which would be inconsistent with the goals of the General Plan.
- d. Allow a proper time frame to provide public facilities (such as park improvements, meeting facilities, library, water and sewer lines, fire stations, etc.) adequate to serve the expanding population.
- e. Provide a mechanism that allows the school districts the time element to adequately prepare to increased demands created by a growing community.
- f. Allow for planning and funding of public improvements and utility commensurate with the community's ability to absorb costs and growth — including impacts.
- g. Provide for needed adjustments and provisions for public safety purposes and minimize the deviation and work load for City Staff sections that serve development activities.
- h. Maintain control over City expenditures and prevent over burdening of local revenue sources by avoiding the need for greatly accelerated construction of major public facilities and improvements.

i. Provide for the balance of housing needs as reflected in the Housing Element of the General Plan which shall recognize the need for low- and moderate-income families in the community.

j. Provide adequate safeguards to protect the economic interest of the City, local residents, land owners, and commercial establishments.

C. Authority
The authority for this ordinance is derived from the general police power granted the local governments by the state for the purpose of preserving the public health, safety, and general welfare. More specifically, authority is derived from the California Government Code Title 7 (Section 65000, ET SEQ.) providing for the adoption of local planning, zoning, and other land use regulations.

D. Scope
This ordinance pertains to residential development projects only. However, the City shall constantly monitor commercial and industrial development to insure that balance is maintained among the three types of land use as required by the General Plan.

SECTION II. DEFINITIONS

For the purpose of this ordinance, the following terms shall have the meaning indicated:

Rate of Growth - The maximum number of residential units which shall be reviewed during any one period of time.

Competitive Evaluation - The process of comparing the rating scale point totals for projects submitted for consideration in order to determine priority for receiving the monthly review by the Planning Commission, Administrative Review Committee and/or City Council.

General Criteria - Certain aspects of residential projects associated with growth management, relating primarily to consistency with general and specific plans, location of development, environmental and aesthetic qualities, social balance and other miscellaneous factors, such as the developer performance rating, thoroughness and readiness of a project, and the date the applications are received which are all incorporated into a point rating scale to be adopted by the City Council by resolution. The project rating scale is used to give point ratings to proposed residential developments for the future competitive evaluation.

Project Rating Scale or PRS - A measuring device composed of a number of general and specific rating criteria related to the general criteria defined above used for assigning point ratings to proposed residential projects prior to monthly competitive evaluation of two or more projects.

Residential Projects - Any development project which will require the construction of any new residential dwelling to the construction of the city's review and approval of any division of the land or site plan. This definition shall not include a single-family residence to be constructed on land requiring no division.

SECTION III. ESTABLISHMENT OF RATE OF GROWTH

A. Criteria for City Rate of Growth

The City Council shall periodically, as it deems necessary, after considering economic environmental and other studies relative to the growth management program, determine the maximum number of dwelling units for which land division or site plan review is given consistent with the purpose and intent of this ordinance as set forth in Section I. Said numerical limit shall be set in accordance with the procedures set forth hereafter. The numerical limit shall be expressed in the total number of dwelling units which may be reviewed during any period of time set at the discretion of the Council. These numerical limits together with the time in which divisions of land or site plan for the maximum number of dwelling units may be reviewed, shall be set forth in a resolution to be enacted by the Council as it deems appropriate after considering all factors set forth above.

SECTION IV. REVIEW AND PROCESSING PROCEDURES FOR RESIDENTIAL DEVELOPMENT

A. Application for land divisions and site plan review may only be filed on the established day of the week. Said day will be assigned in advance by the City Administrator.

B. Application of Point Rating System. All applications for land division and site plan review shall be rated by the Administrative Review Board pursuant to the general and specific criteria and points assigned to the same by the City Council and pursuant to a resolution which shall be adopted periodically by the Council and periodically reviewed not less than once each year to insure that the Point Rating System remains consistent with the goals and purposes of the Growth Management Plan of the City. The Point Rating System established by the Council shall establish five (5) basic categories which will be used in the Point Rating System and each category shall be assigned a maximum total points which will then be generally divided into sub-categories for rating purposes. The five (5) basic categories upon which each of the applications will be rated are consistency with general and specific plans, location of the development, environmental and aesthetic qualities of the development, social balance of the development, and miscellaneous considerations such as the past performance rating of the developer, thoroughness and readiness of the project, and the date the applications are received.

C. Once each month the Administrative Review Board shall review and rate each project pursuant to the established Point Rating System. Each project shall receive a priority rating and projects with the highest comparative rating within the monthly allocation limitation shall be forwarded to the appropriate committee and/or commission for further processing and review at the next regular meeting of said committee or commission subject to compliance with the requirements and practices. Therefore, any project not forwarded for further processing in any calendar month shall be reviewed by the Development Review Committee during the next successive rating period and comparatively ranked with applications received during said period.

D. Appeal of Ratings. Within five (5) days after the determination of the Development Review Committee, the Review Committee shall cause a notice to be mailed to the applicant stating the point rating of his residential development and the required point rating for the consideration of residential development at the next regular meeting of either said committee or commission. The decision of the Administrative Review Committee in this respect shall be final unless an appeal to the Planning Commission is filed within ten (10) days after the mailing of said written notice. Any person or body, public or private, aggrieved by such determination may appeal the point rating to the Planning Commission.

E. Issuance of building permits, except as otherwise provided in this section. No building permits shall be issued for any residential dwelling unit which is subject to the provision of this ordinance with respect to an already issued an approved building permit or land divisions or site plans which have been already approved prior to the adoption of this ordinance.

SECTION V.

Said ordinance shall be reviewed annually and in conjunction with the review of said sewer allotment resolution for possible modifications and amendments and shall in any event be of no further force and effect a period of five (5) years from the date of adoption of this ordinance or until the City Council adopts a final growth control policy as part of the Housing Element of the City's General Plan which ever event occurs sooner.

SECTION VI. OTHER LAWS, ORDERS, AND ORDINANCES

Nothing in this ordinance shall be deemed to effect, amend, or abrogate any other laws or ordinances pertaining or applicable to the property and areas affected by this ordinance which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this nor shall it be deemed in conflict with any State laws, orders, or requirements affecting such property or areas.

SECTION VII. TIME LIMITS FOR APPROVALS

A. Expiration of Approvals - Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 9-3.13, Article 9 Chapter 2 of the Montclair Municipal Code, the following provisions shall apply for the approval of any land division or site plan subject to the provision of this ordinance.

The approval of any land division or site plan shall expire not less than twelve (12) nor more than eighteen (18) months from date said land division or plan was approved or conditionally approved.

B. Extension of Approval - The person filing the tentative map or site plan may request an extension of the approval of conditional approval of said map or plan by written application, such application to be filed at least thirty (30) days before the approval or conditional approval is due to expire. The application shall state the reasons for requesting the extension and reasons shall include a statement qualifying and describing the progress made toward meeting all conditions of final approval. If an extension is granted, new conditions may be imposed and existing conditions may be revised.

C. Time Limit of Extensions - Any extension of tentative map or site plan approval or conditional approval shall not exceed a period of six months.

D. Effect of Map Modification on Extension - Modification of a tentative map after approval or conditional approval shall not extend the time limits imposed by this section.

SECTION VIII. PUBLISHING

The City Clerk shall cause this ordinance to be published within fifteen (15) days after its passage at least once in the Montclair Tribune.

SECTION IX. SEVERABILITY

If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase hereof shall for any reason be invalid, such holding or holdings shall not effect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance. The City Council has declared that it would have passed this ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof be declared invalid.

SECTION X. PENALTY

If any person shall violate any provisions of this ordinance, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punishable by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500) or imprisonment in the County Jail for a period of not more than six (6) months or by both such fine and imprisonment. Such person shall be deemed guilty of a separate offense for every day during such portions of which any violation of the provision of this ordinance is committed, continued or permitted by such, shall be punishable therefore as provided by this ordinance.

Not 'in it' for recognition

Student enjoys climbing

Pick up a copy of this month's "Climbing" magazine and you'll see him in the cover photograph, perched precariously on a vertical rock wall. Inside he details his latest adventure in the cover story which he wrote. University of La Verne student John Long of Alta Loma can also be seen on the covers of recent issues of other "rock-climbing" oriented publications, including "Summit," "Mountain Man" and "North American Climber."

"I've had more than my share of recognition," he admits, "but I'm not in it for that. I just like to climb and frequently happen to be in the right place at the right time."

Raised in Indio, the 23-year-old acquired an interest in sports early in life.

"I loved sports but never found one I could really get into until I discovered rock gymnastics," he said. "There's no end to the perfection you can achieve."

Climbing has taken up approximately half of each year for Long since he became involved with it eight years ago. The remaining halves have been given to intellectual and spiritual pursuits and a part-time job. Long holds a bachelor's degree in English from La Verne and is now working toward one in philosophy. He is also involved in course work at the Claremont School of Theology toward a master's degree in philosophy.

Beyond learning acquired through these more traditional avenues, he has periodically frequented monasteries and retreat centers for various lengths of time.

To keep in shape during the times he's not climbing, Long lifts weights two hours a day. He gives additional attention to finger exercises — a necessary discipline to maintain a grip on sheer rock walls.

One of the most attractive features about rock climbing for Long is that "it doesn't take place in a contrived, organized setting."

Organized settings, not just in sports, but in many aspects of Long's life, hold little, if any, attraction.

"I think people are misled by society. They're in such a big hurry to find a career and become settled and established in the world. They see becoming established as a means of declaring their own self-worth. There are a lot of other ways in life to do that," Long noted.

"I'm not interested in marriage or having a family," he added. "I have no need for it. Besides, there are too many kids in the world anyway. I don't think it's wrong for people to get married or have kids, it's just not for me. I'm finding fulfillment through other means."

CLIMBING — University of La Verne student John Long shows his climbing skill by scaling La Petra Hall without climbing gear. Long's eight years of climbing include setting a world record on Yosemite's El Capitan and being featured in the March copy of "Climbing" magazine.

At the heart of Long's unique approach to life is not rebellion, but simply the desire to realize his fullest potential.

"I don't harbor any bitterness toward society or anything like that. I'm just doing this because this is what I like to do."

In 1975 Long and a few fellow climbers set a world's record by climbing Yosemite's El Capitan in one day.

Rock climbing in Italy awaits him this summer. His adventure there will be covered by a London-based "rock climbing" magazine.

Painting plane expensive deal; fliers pay for worker's skill

Having your twin-engine Aero Commander painted will run you $8,325, special trim extra.

On a single-engine Cessna 150, a paint job will be $1,325.

Why these high price tags?

Leonard Stout, manager of the firm that does the painting, Southwest Aircraft Services near Upland's Cable Airport, says the explanation is that an aircraft paint job involves a lot more than sweeping swiftly over a plane with a spray gun.

Depending on the type of aircraft, workers earning up to $8 to $10 an hour spend 60 to 400 man-hours:

— Masking all plexiglass windows and fiberglass surfaces to prevent damage during painting.

— Making two or three applications of spray-on paint remover that costs $4 to $10 a gallon.

— Applying an acid to remove surface corrosion and open pores.

— Sanding.

— Applying two coats of primer.

— Applying two coats of the basic color, usually white.

— Masking surfaces which won't be painted further.

— Applying the remaining colors.

— Applying the final details.

Stout said applying the last coats and trim is a highly skilled task since the painter must produce a smooth coating which will neither peel nor run.

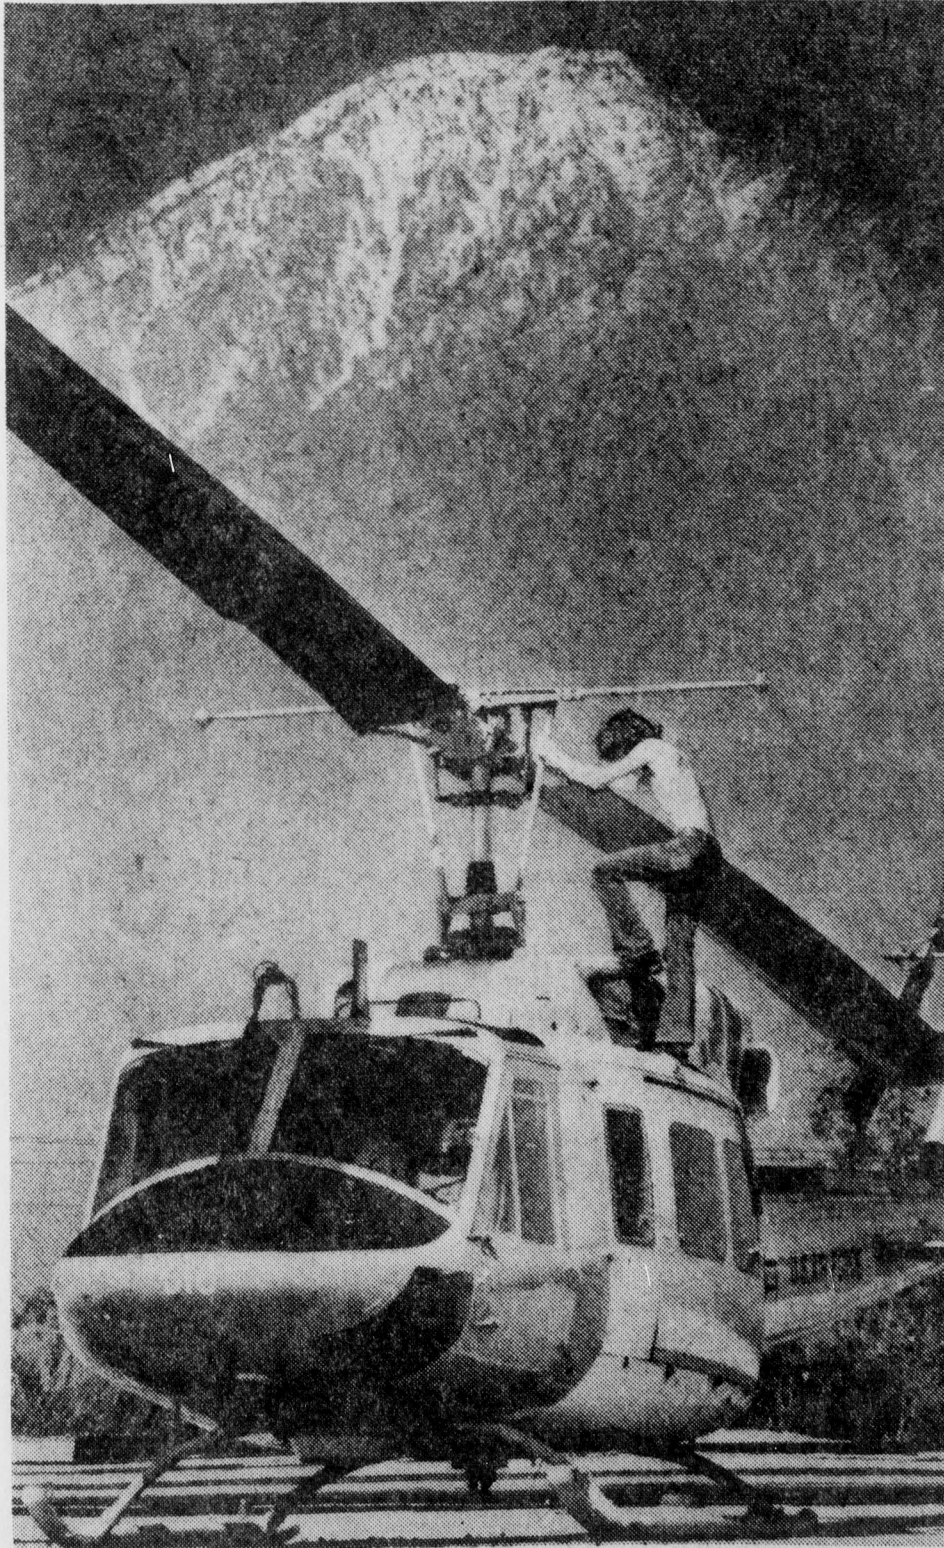

"Auto painters can't do it... it's a technique these guys develop," he said.

An aircraft is normally repainted every five to seven years. If not, holes will eventually appear and ultimately the wings might fall off, Stout said.

He said the Upland firm, which has 20 employees, paints 250 planes a year and does partial paint jobs on another 200, probably more planes than any other such firm west of the Mississippi.

There are substantially bigger aircraft painting operations at big jet aircraft manufacturers like McDonnell Douglas, Boeing and Lockheed.

PLANE PAINTING — Danny Rogers works on a helicopter painted at Southwest Aircraft in Upland. The unusual skill commands a high price.

Kamansky new vice president

Supervisor Joseph Kamansky of Upland was elected vice president of the governing board of the San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG) Wednesday.

This means Kamansky will become president of SANBAG. San Bernardino County's transportation planning board, next year, unless he loses his bid for a full term as county supervisor later this year.

The board elected Redlands Councilman Chresten Knudsen president for the coming year. Knudsen will succeed Supervisor Robert O. Townsend of Chino.

The board's bylaws say the presidency must alternate between one of the five members of the county board of supervisors and one of the 15 city representatives. The vice presidency is held by a member of the other group.

Outlook meet slated in May

This year's San Bernardino - Riverside County business outlook conference is scheduled for 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. May 11 at the San Bernardino Convention Center.

Reservation forms will be available soon.
